KELLOGG'S "MEMORIALS OF ELDER JOHN WHITE AND OF HIS DESCENDANTS" is now out of print and difficult to obtain at any price. Since 1860 another generation has sprung up; of the one hundred and twenty-two descendants of Roderick White only twenty-seven are mentioned in that work. At the request of several members of the family, I have prepared this supplement to Kellogg's "Memorials," which is intended to give a continuous record of our branch of the family from the emigration of John White and Thomas Blakeslee to New England down to the present time. In its preparation I have had occasion to consult many printed books, of which I mention the most important. (1) Drake's "Founders of New England," Boston, 1860. It gives the "licenses to pass beyond the seas" of emigrants to New England from 1632 to 1637, as found in the British Public Records. This establishes the date of John White's emigration as June 22, 1632, and that of Thomas Blakeslee's as July 28, 1635. (2) Savage's "Genealogical Dictionary of the First Settlers of New England," Boston, 1860-62,—a work indispensable to every worker in the field of American genealogy. (3) Walker's "Thomas Hooker," N. Y., 1891, which, though mentioning John White by name only as a witness of Hooker's will, gives an admirable picture of the spiritual and physical environment of the Puritan settlers of Connecticut. (4) Bronson's "History of Waterbury," Waterbury, 1858, which contains genealogical notices of the Blakeslee family. Personal information has been sought from many sources, and has been given with unfailing promptness and accuracy. For special aid I wish to thank Professor Aaron White and Mrs. Phebe W. Maltby, of Cazenovia, and the Rev. Marvin P. Blakeslee, of Ithaca.

For convenience of reference Roderick White is distinguished by the number (1) and to his descendants are assigned consecutively in the order of seniority of descent the numbers from (2) to (123). In lists of children the sign + following a number indicates that a further account of the individual and his family is to be found in a subsequent paragraph. A separate paragraph is given to every descendant of Roderick White named White who has had children. A superior figure in lists of direct ancestors marks the number of the generation, counting John White's as the first. Ordinary abbreviations are used freely. Alternate pages have been left blank for the purpose of keeping up the family record in future years. I shall be pleased to receive and to communicate such items of family history as may properly find place in such records.

Of the 122 descendants of Roderick White named in these pages, 14 died in infancy, 3 in early childhood, and 2 about the age of sixty. Of the 103 now living, 52 are residents of New York State, 18 of Kansas, 7 of Michigan, 4 of Connecticut, 4 of Ohio, 1 of Illinois, and 17 of Canada. It is my hope that the Memorials here presented may help to keep united in interest and sympathy our family now so widely scattered.

ANDREW C. WHITE.

Summary

1. Introduction

The first part of the report discusses the importance of the study and the objectives of the research. It also provides a brief overview of the methodology used in the study. The second part of the report presents the results of the study, which are discussed in detail in the following sections. The third part of the report discusses the implications of the findings and provides recommendations for future research.

The results of the study show that there is a significant difference between the two groups. The first group showed a higher level of performance than the second group. This difference was statistically significant at the 0.05 level. The findings suggest that the first group may have a higher level of skill or knowledge than the second group. Further research is needed to confirm these findings and to explore the reasons for the difference.

American Ancestry of Roderick White.

FIRST GENERATION.

ELDER JOHN WHITE, who was born in England, about 1600, arrived at Boston by the ship Lyon from London, September 16, 1632. He was admitted a freeman of Massachusetts, March 4, 1633. In February, 1635, he was chosen one of the first board of selectmen of Cambridge. In 1636 he joined the company of the Rev. Thomas Hooker in founding Hartford on the Connecticut River. In 1659 he was one of the leaders in the settlement of Hadley, in Massachusetts. This town chose him its Deputy to the General Court or Legislature, sitting in Boston, in 1664 and again in 1669. About 1670 he returned to Hartford, and was chosen Ruling Elder in the South Church. In the winter of 1683-84 he rested from his labors. He was a friend and strong supporter of Thomas Hooker, and was one of the witnesses to his will, July 7, 1647. His successive removals from England to Massachusetts, to the wilderness of the Connecticut, to the frontier settlement of Hadley, and again to Hartford, were all prompted by his desire to realize the Puritan ideal of a Church formed after the scriptural model. John White's wife, whom he married in England, had the Christian name of Mary, and died before her husband.

SIXTH GENERATION.

ISAAC WHITE (Moses⁵, Isaac⁴, Daniel³, Nathaniel², John¹), eldest son of Moses White, was born in Guilford, Conn., Oct. 14, 1752. He married, Dec. 7, 1775, Thankful Clark, of Southington, who was born Jan. 1, 1760, and died June 27, 1836. Her father, Col. Joel Clark, was a man of wealth, according to the estimate of the times, and carried on both farming and mercantile business. When about to leave home at the outbreak of the Revolutionary War to enter the service of his country, he expressed the wish that his two daughters, who were already betrothed, should be married before his departure. Col. Clark never returned to his family, but died at New York a prisoner of war in 1776. The daughters carried on his business successfully for some time in their native town. As the war progressed Isaac White did a seemingly thriving business in furnishing supplies to the Continental Army. On account of the depreciation of the Continental currency, however, this business ultimately proved disastrous, and diminished greatly the property inherited by his wife. It was not without difficulty that the debts were paid. In 1790 Isaac White bade farewell to his friends in Connecticut, and following in the track of his kinsman Hugh White, emigrated to the wilderness of Central New York, settling among the Germans of the Mohawk Valley, about seven miles east of Utica. The following year, having built a log house and raised a crop of grain, he sent for his family, then consisting of his wife and seven children, to come to their new home. He afterwards removed to Chuckery Corners, in the town of Paris, and finally, about 1815, to Springville, Erie Co., where he died Jan. 15, 1822, aged sixty-nine.

Roderick White and Lucy Blakeslee.

SEVENTH GENERATION.

1. RODERICK WHITE, (Isaac⁶, Moses⁵, Isaac⁴, Daniel³, Nathaniel², John¹), the sixth of the thirteen children of Isaac White and Thankful Clark, was born at Southington, Conn., Dec. 8, 1788, and died at Sauquoit, N. Y., Jan. 12, 1877, having reached a greater age than any of his American ancestors. Although the family removed from Connecticut before he was three years old, he remembered the whipping of a thief at the public whipping post on Southington Green, and some incidents of the long journey by wagon and bateau to the upper Mohawk Valley. His boyhood was spent in the rude but wholesome life of the frontier. From his German neighbors he gained some knowledge of their language, which he always retained. In later life he would tell his children and grandchildren of the bear he met while driving home the cows, of his dangerous fall from a horse, and of being poisoned with wild nuts found in the woods. To these accidents he attributed his short stature, which in manhood was about five feet one and one half inch. His scanty school privileges in childhood were supplemented by two winter terms at the Fairfield Academy, and he taught school at least one term. For several years he was a merchant's clerk at Newport, Herkimer Co., N. Y. At the age of twenty-one, becoming convinced that his health required active, out-of-door labor, he chose the carpenter's trade, which he followed during the rest of his life. He became muscular and hardy, and would never acknowledge himself sick or tired. He usually worked without a hat and knew nothing of headache by experience.

He purchased of Joseph Hall, April 29, 1815, six acres of woodland and a home-lot of five acres. In the log house upon this lot lived Eli Blakeslee and his family in the summer of 1816. Here occurred the wedding of Roderick White and Lucy Blakeslee, July 5, 1816. Upon this Home-lot, in a house which he built later, their children were born and brought up, and here the Golden Wedding was celebrated July 5, 1866, in the presence of the ten surviving children and many grandchildren. He conveyed the Home-lot by deed to his son Aaron, April 25, 1874. For many years he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, but afterwards joined the Freewill Baptist denomination on account of his sympathy with the advanced views held by this body of Christians regarding the abolition of slavery. His constant habit was industry, and both father and mother were faithful in the discipline of their household. At the age of fifty he gave up the use of tobacco for example's sake, and none of his sons ever fell into that snare. Vivacious, agile, self-opinioned, and eccentric, he was a man of keen sense and sound religious principles. By the younger generation he is remembered as the kindest and most companionable of grandfathers.

LUCY BLAKESLEE, dau. of Eli Blakeslee and Lettice Curtis, was born in the town of Paris, Oneida Co., N. Y., Sept. 1, 1798, and died Mar. 15, 1873. She was the youngest of a family of six sons and six daughters. She inherited from her parents a strong constitution, and was taught both by precept and example all that is implied in the terms industry, economy, integrity, and the fear of God. She enjoyed no educational advantages except those of the common school; but having an active mind and remarkable memory, she acquired a store of information above most of her associates. Until her marriage she had rarely left the neighborhood of her home, but was devoted to domestic pursuits in her father's house, becoming skillful in spinning and weaving of both linen and woolen, for at that time all the clothing as well as the bedding for the family was home-made. Married in her eighteenth year, she settled with her husband in her native town, one and one-fourth mile north of Paris Hill. Here they lived fifty-six years. In the autumn of 1872, suffering somewhat from the feebleness of age, they consented to leave the old home to which they were strongly attached, and go to the village of Sauquoit, only four miles distant, to spend the remnant of life with their daughter Phebe. The aged mother seemed cheerful and happy in her new home, but after a few months, weakened by partial paralysis, she fell to the floor, dislocating her left hip. Her old physician, Dr. Larrabee, of Paris Hill, assisted by Dr. Bishop, of Sauquoit, replaced the injured bones and gave her the most faithful attention, as also did her children; but after about six weeks of suffering she heard the Welcome for which she longed, and was at rest. Having done well as daughter, wife, and mother, neighbor, friend, and Christian, she was known only to be loved, and departed lamented by all, especially by her children, who "arise up and call her blessed." After four years of patient waiting, marked only by gradual decay of his physical powers, Roderick White rejoined the greatly missed companion of his youth.

EIGHTH GENERATION.

2. LEONARD WHITE^a, (Roderick⁷), eldest son of Roderick White and Lucy Blakeslee, was born in Paris*, Oneida Co., N. Y., May 30, 1817. He married at Jefferson, O., Oct. 10, 1838, Clarissa Cone of Paris, N. Y., dau. of Caleb Cone and Clarissa Sackett, who was born Aug. 19, 1817. During the winter of 1838-39 they lived at Medina, O., returning to Paris, N. Y., in the spring of 1839. In the fall of that year he removed to Oneida, where he taught a school of the Oneida Indians. In 1840 he removed to Vernon, and in 1841 to Cazenovia, where he lived until 1869. In this year he removed to Auburn, N. Y., where he died June 29, 1878. He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal church at Paris Hill in 1834, was licensed as an Exhorter in 1838, was licensed to preach June 26, 1841, and was a Licensed Preacher of the Methodist Episcopal church until his death. He worked most of his life at his trade as a master carpenter. He was quite eccentric, but a man of sterling integrity, and so strictly honest that if any one came in to talk with him when he was at work, he would note the time spent, and deduct it from his day's bill for labor. When he finally had to quit work by reason of his fatal illness, he could say, that he did not owe a cent in the world. Although not popular, he was always respected in the communities in which he lived. He trained up his five children in the fear of the Lord, and was always an earnest worker in the Christian Church.

3. MOSES CLARK WHITE^s, (Roderickⁱ), son of Roderick White and Lucy Blakeslee, was born in Paris, N. Y., July 24, 1819. In November, 1840, he entered Cazenovia Seminary. In February, 1842, he entered Wesleyan University, at Middletown, Conn., and graduated third in rank in his class in 1845. In 1845-46 he pursued theological and medical studies in Yale University, besides preaching in New Haven and Milford. He was ordained Elder in the Methodist Episcopal church Mar. 30, 1847, and having been appointed missionary to China, sailed from Boston April 15 of that year. From 1847 to 1853 he was a missionary and physician in Foo-Chow. He had charge there of a dispensary, had an extensive medical and surgical practice among the Chinese, and obtained great favor among all ranks of the people. In 1851 he published a translation of the Gospel of Matthew in the colloquial language of Foo-Chow, which was the first book ever published in that dialect. In 1853 he returned to the United States and established himself in New Haven as a physician. In 1857 he was appointed Lecturer on Microscopy in the Medical Department of Yale College, and in 1867 Professor of Microscopy and Pathology. He is now senior professor in the department. He served as Secretary of the Connecticut Medical Society from 1864 to 1876. In 1856 he published an "Introduction to the Study of the Colloquial Language of Foo-Chow." He assisted largely in the preparation and publication of "Silliman's Physics," and wrote the chapter on optics. He revised and edited the second edition of Porter's Chemistry. He gave instruction in Botany from 1861 to 1864 in the Sheffield Scientific School, and from 1869 to 1875 lectured in the Wesleyan University on the microscopical structure of plants and animals. He married 1st, Mar. 13, 1847, Jane Isabel Atwater, of Homer, N. Y., dau. of Ezra Atwater, who was born Aug. 26, 1822, and died at Foo-Chow, May 25, 1848; 2nd, July 14, 1851, Mary Seely, dau. of Joseph Owen Seely, of South Onondaga, N. THEORY OF THE EARTH AND ITS HISTORY

The theory of the earth and its history is a branch of geology which deals with the origin and development of the earth and its various parts. It is a science which seeks to explain the processes which have shaped the earth and its features, and to determine the sequence of events which have taken place since the earth was first formed.

The theory of the earth and its history is based on the study of the earth's rocks and fossils. By examining the layers of rocks and the remains of plants and animals which are found in them, geologists can determine the order in which they were formed, and the conditions under which they were formed. This is done by comparing the rocks and fossils of different regions, and by studying the changes which have taken place in the earth's crust over time.

The theory of the earth and its history is also based on the study of the earth's physical features. By examining the mountains, rivers, and other features of the earth, geologists can determine the processes which have shaped them, and the sequence of events which have taken place since they were first formed.

The theory of the earth and its history is a science which is constantly developing. As new discoveries are made, and as new theories are proposed, our understanding of the earth and its history is constantly being refined and expanded. This is why the theory of the earth and its history is one of the most exciting and important branches of geology.

APPENDIX II.

In the interest of accuracy of statement, as well as from a sentiment of regard for the tombs of our ancestors, I have gathered the following grave-stone inscriptions. In one instance I have been enabled to correct an error, which has been perpetuated in Kellogg's "John White." Moses White died not "about 1812," but Oct. 12, 1796. Further researches of this kind will, I hope, disclose the dates of the death of Aaron Blakeslee, Ebenezer Blakeslee, and David Blakeslee. In genealogical investigations family traditions are of small value compared with the records contained in family Bibles, grave-stones, and legal documents.

(1.) From the Riverside Cemetery, Middletown, Conn.

a. "Here lyeth the body of Nathaniel White, Esq., who dyed August y^e 27th, 1711, aged about 82 year^s."

b. "Here lyeth the body of M^{rs} Elisabeth White, the wife of Nathaniel White, Esq., who dyed in y^e year 1690, aged about 65 years."

(2.) From the cemetery at Middletown, Upper Houses (Cromwell).

a. "Here lyeth the body of M^{rs} Martha White, relict to Capt. Nathaniel White, Esq., who dyed April the 15th, 1730, aged about 86 years."

b. "Here lies the body of Enfⁿ Danil White. He was born Feb. 27, 1661, and died December y^e 18, 1739, in the 78th year of his age."

c. "Here lies intered the body of M^{rs} Susannah White, relict of Ensⁿ Daniel, who departed this life Sept. y^e 7th, 1754, in y^e 93d year of her age."

d. "Here lies intered the body of Deacⁿ Isaac White, who departed this life June 27th, A. D. 1769, in the 72nd year of his age."

e. "In memory of M^{rs} Sibyl White, relict of Deacⁿ Isaac White, who departed this life Nov. y^e 7th, A. D. 1782, in the 80th year of her age."

(3.) From the cemetery at Newport, N. H.

"In memory of Mr. Moses White, who died Oct. 12th, 1796, in the 68th year of his age.

Friends,
Death is a debt to nature due,
Which I have paid, and so must you."

(4.) From the cemetery at Springfield, Erie Co., N. Y.

a. "Isaac White died Jan. 15, 1822, $\text{\AE}$ 69."

b. "Thankful, wife of Isaac White, died June 27, 1836, $\text{\AE}$ 76."

(5.) From the cemetery near St. Paul's church, Paris Hill, N. Y.

a. "Roderick White, born Dec. 8, 1788, in Southington, Ct., died Jan. 12, 1877.

'As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.' "

b. "Lucy Blakeslee, wife of Roderick White, born Sept. 1, 1798, died Mar. 15, 1873.

'Her children arise up and call her blessed' "

c. "'God is love.' Eli, son of Roderick and Lucy White, died March 17, 1840, æ. 6 years, 4 mo. & 2 days."

d. "In memory of Eli Blakeslee, who died Dec. 6th, 1826, in the 74th year of his age.

'Return unto thy rest, O my soul; for the Lord hath dealt bountifully with thee.'—Ps. CXVI, VII."

e. "In memory of Lettice, relict of Eli Blakeslee, who died May 20th, 1830, in the 74 year of her age.

This I desired whilst in the flesh,

My faith here to record,

And tell the world in whom I trust;

'Twas in my gracious Lord.

Then put your trust in Him alone,

And let your words be few,

And look to Him for saving faith,

He also died for you."
